Address, A. E. DICK, N. Y. Office 12 West 23rd St. PROSPECT HOUSE

From Dark Ages to Date.—First, it was a repository of treasures, a seat or table by day, and frequently a bed by night—very simple—built chiefly for strength like these at $9.00; later they were ornamented and beautified with hammered iron work in locks, hinges and clamps, many examples of these. In the Renaissance period, they were covered with carvings of armorial bearings and other emblems. As the taste and love of ease developed, backs and arms were laid upon it, but the seat was a lid that lifted. Later, cushions (which we have from 50 cents) were laid upon it and stuffs thrown over it. A chest gives the summer hall a substantial look and is so convenient for wraps rubbers, tennis and golf belongings. AND COTTAGES.
